bezoar, hog bezoar, and monkey bezoar " I As concretions of one kind or another are not uncommon objects in the alimentary tract of mammals it was easy enough to obtain a fair amount of some substance which was sure to sell well. It is said that a stone weighing four ounces was once sold in this country (or at any rate in Europe) for £200.

" There can be no doubt," observes Mr. Blanford, *' that C. aegagrus is one of the species, and probably the principal, from which tame goats are derived."

The Chamois (Mupricapra) and the Goral {Nemorrhaedus) are
